All Saints Day Background

According to some sources, the idea for All Saints' Day goes back to the fourth century when the Greek Christians kept a festival on the first Sunday after Pentecost (in late May or early June) in honor of all martyrs and saints.

Pope Gregory IV made All Saint's Day an authorized holiday in 837 CE. It is speculated that the chosen date for the event, November 1, may have been an attempt to supplant pagan festivals that occurred around the same time. It is the day after the feast of All Hallows' Evening (also known as Halloween). This solemnity comes from the Christian tradition of celebrating the martyrdom of saints on the anniversary of their death.

All Souls Day

This day is a Christian festival that honors all souls of Christians who have died. Observing Christians usually remember their deceased relatives on this day. Believers remember and pray for the souls of people who are in Purgatory, the place in which those who have died atone for their sins before being granted the vision of God in heaven. The thought behind this is that when a soul leaves the body it is not entirely cleansed from sins. Purgatory is a beautiful sign of God's infinite love. The best way to help the souls in purgatory is the Mass, the Rosary, the Way of the Cross, & Eucharistic Adoration. Of the four the holy sacrifice of Mass is the highest act of worship, the highest form of prayer and the most efficacious means to help the souls in purgatory.

It has some wonderful materials for Sunday liturgy preparation and personal and small group spiritual growth. The site is very easily accessible and provides a lot of helpful Catholic faith information.

MARRIAGE MINUTE-

"I can see!" In difficult moments, sometimes a change of perspective can make all the difference in the world. While this is certainly true in a literal sense for the blind man in this weekend's readings, it is also true for us in our marriages if we have the courage to get up and run to Jesus when he calls us. Jesus can help us "see": • Our spouse's wonderful qualities, when all we can see is faults. • Our own sin, so we can apologize. • An eternal perspective, so we have courage in suffering. • A new solution to a situation that seemed impossible. • God's faithfulness to us in the past, so we can trust him in the future.

SAVE THE DATE - The "My House Workshop for Men" will be held February 28-March 2, 2019. This is a 3-day confidential, intensive for men striving to overcome and heal from unwanted sexual behaviors; includes a half day on betrayal trauma and how this addiction impacts a spouse. The ANNUAL MEETING St. Joseph Cemetery Association of Lillis, November 6, 7:30, at Lillis Backroads

Reflecting On Sunday's Readings

Robert Munger wrote a helpful little booklet called My Heart, Christ's Home. In it he compares our lives to a house with many rooms. He raises the question, does Christ have access to every room (every area) in our life or only to those areas where we feel comfortable having him visit? Though written over thirty years ago Munger hit upon a phenomenon of contemporary society, the compartmentalizing of the various aspects of our lives. This tendency is also very present within the Christian segment of society and is often expressed by the position that "it isn't what I do that is important but what I believe." Jesus, in this week's Gospel reading, does not accept this dichotomy. When Jesus was asked what is the greatest commandment, he replies, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength." Interestingly, Jesus characterizes our lives as having four segments, heart, soul, mind, and strength. Frequently, though, we do not love God comprehensively in this way but rather amplify our love for God in one of these four segments to the detriment of the others. And so we find some that love devotedly but are weak on understanding, or others who have great knowledge about God, but lack deep love. Still there are some who express their love very emotionally while failing to attend to people's physical needs, and still others who go about doing all kinds of good but who have little interest in increasing their understanding. It seems like we all want to love God on our terms and in the way we choose. Jesus teaches that this partial response is not sufficient. He repeatedly uses the word "all" to communicate that our love for God should encompass all parts of our being; all our affections, all our emotions, all our understanding, and all our actions. Then Jesus goes one step further and says that we should also love our neighbor, his creation, as ourselves. This type of love is an all-consuming love, beyond our capabilities, and requires the giving of all that we are to him. Munger challenges us in his booklet that instead of allowing Jesus to simply be a guest in our home (life) we should turn ownership over to him, giving Jesus both the deed and the key to our home (life). This abandonment of ourselves in love to Jesus is both the beginning act of loving God with all our heart, all our soul, all our mind, and all our strength, and the means by which we will be able to love our neighbor as ourselves. The ability to love God with our all, inasmuch as it is beyond our natural abilities, requires yielding to the Holy Spirit, for the first fruit of the Spirit is love. It is the Holy Spirit who opens our mind and heart to increasingly understand the depth of the Father's love, and the extent to which it was expressed in Christ's incarnation and passion. For in the final analysis our ability to love God with our all is a reciprocal action that mirrors and reflects the extent to which we have grasped God's love. It is that love which compels us to stop living for ourselves and to begin living for Christ. St. Theresa understood well the compelling nature of love to change our behavior. "Perhaps we do not know what love is: it would not surprise me a great deal to learn this, for love consists, not in the extent of our happiness, but in the firmness of our determination to try to please God in everything, and to endeavor, in all possible ways, not to offend Him, and to pray Him ever to advance the honour and glory of His Son and the growth of the Catholic Church. Those are the signs of love..."¹ Without this compelling love, inviting Jesus to no longer simply be a guest in our lives but instead to live and rule there as the rightful owner, is very difficult. So let's begin asking the Holy Spirit to show us the Father's love and to reproduce it in our hearts. We then will say with the Psalmist, "I love thee, O LORD, my strength."
